

Yoseph Elkaim

Assistant Vice President, Strategic Advisory Services, Genpact

Yoseph Elkaim has spent the past 20 years advising national leaders and chief executives in both public and private sectors on a range of strategic, management, legal and policy issues. His clients include leading companies in tech, defense, finance, security, global trade and aerospace. In addition, Mr. Elkaim is a frequent contributing analyst and commentator on CNN, NBC, Fox News, NPR, Newsweek, Chatham House, BBC, Al Jazeera, The Wall Street Journal, The New York Times, Forbes, The Globe and Mail, CBC, BNN and the Washington Post.

Mr. Elkaim works with clients at the intersection of regulatory policy and business outcomes to develop targeted compliance strategies. Yoseph supports clients in understanding security critical technologies such as AI and Machine Learning as well as trade and challenges arising from geopolitical instability.

Mr. Elkaim served as the Chief of Intelligence for the Department of Defense Economic Crimes and CounterThreat Finance Task Force alongside Special Inspector General for Afghan Reconstruction (SIGAR) operating under the International Security Assistance Force (ISAF). Post-ISAF, he led a team focused on Threat Finance & Financial Intelligence.

Mr. Elkaim is a regular speaker and presenter for leading companies and provides evidence for governmental committees and think tanks in the areas of tech, policy, defense, finance, security, global trade, and aerospace.